Market Technical Outlook

The Nifty opened higher but was unable to sustain the opening gains which led the markets to close on a flat note. On the daily chart, an upward gap area (25,029–25,077) is the immediate support for the market. We maintain our view that the supply zone between 25,200 and 25,230 is major resistance. Hence in upcoming trading session, a move above 25,150 could lead the index to test the 25,200–25,300 zone. On the downside, the 25,000–24,900 range may offer immediate support. Our broader view remains positive, as the index continues to trade above key short-term moving averages, reinforcing the bullish technical setup. However, the Relative Strength Index (RSI) is exhibiting negative divergence, signalling weakening momentum and warranting some caution. Despite this, stock-specific strength continues to be observed, reflecting selective buying interest across the broader market and supporting a constructive undertone.
