The Nifty opened on a positive note but failed to sustain the initial gains as selling pressure intensified throughout the session, leading the index to close sharply lower. On the daily chart, prices faced stiff resistance near the supply zone of 25,200–25,230, with an intraday high of 25,196. Despite the decline, the index managed to close above the rising 10-day SMA (24,862) and the 21-day SMA (24,858). Going forward, if the Nifty holds above the 24,858 level during the initial hour of trade, it may attempt to test the 24,976–25,080 zone. However, a breach below 24,858 could open the doors for a further decline towards the 24,750–24,680 range. We still maintain our stance that the index continues to trade above key short-term moving averages, reinforcing the bullish technical setup. However, the Relative Strength Index (RSI) is exhibiting negative divergence, signalling weakening momentum and warranting some caution. Despite this, stock-specific strength continues to be observed, reflecting selective buying interest across the broader market and supporting a constructive undertone.
