Market Technical Outlook

The Nifty opened down with a gap, and selling pressure intensified as the session progressed, leading the index to close in the red. On the daily chart, prices have closed below the declining 50-day SMA (25,056), indicating underlying weakness. However, Nifty has tested the key demand zone of 24,982 – 24,733, which remains a crucial support area. The confluence of these factors suggests that while a bounce from this zone cannot be ruled out, the close below the 50-day SMA reflects prevailing bearish sentiment. In the upcoming session, if Nifty sustains above 24,875, it may attempt to test 24,920 – 25,035 levels. On the downside, support is placed at 24,750 – 24,630.

We continue to maintain our view that the 24,982 – 24,733 zone is a significant support area where buying interest could emerge. However, a sustained close below the 50-day SMA would confirm further weakness, making 24,733 a critical make-or-break level. Meanwhile, stock-specific action is likely to remain prominent in the near term.
